Parody of a justified target of jackassery satire is not actionable.

He took down this picture from Flickr after Kirk Cheyfitz used it to positively identify the hostile innkeeper that ran he and his wife off the grounds of Trout Point Lodge after he would not sign away his right to comment on the service at the Lodge.

Since this post initially went up, I have gotten numerous emails, ranging from apologetic to threatening, from Charles Leary. He alleges bad behavior on my part. He also says the long-running lawsuit filed against Trout Point and him by the Atlantic Canada

Opportunities Agency (ACOA) has been settled. In addition, he says the man I talked to who was identified by his staff as Charles Leary was not, in fact, Charles Leary. But he will not produce the document showing the lawsuit was settled and he will not identify the man he claims I spoke to. Finally, he reaffirms his belief in his policy of attempting to own all his guests
